Perhaps knowingly, perhaps by chance, Wake Forest students contributed to the campus motto of

Pro Humanitate. Working together, often through the VSC office, students pulled together activities ranging from The Fall Ball, a C.A.R.E. event sponsored to provide entertainment for mentally handicapped North Carolina residents and Swing into Spring, for the elderly, to the children's favorite holiday on campus, Project Pumpkin. With smiling faces, nundreds of students came to Wake and visited the Quad Residence Halls, hunting for treats and haunted houses. Various groups around the community contributed funding, candy and entertainment, making the holiday successful for both college and elementary students.

For both freshmen and upperclassmen, the return to campus was hectic. Filled with guest speakers and a flurry of new friends, the time for new freshmen, began with a hectic flurry of moving in and rushing from place to place, taking placement tests and beginning to live independently. University President T.K. Hearn and James Earl Jones were only a few of those offering advice during the first weeks of school. For returning students, the campus offered welcome into a well-remebered environment, with the promise of hard work and long nights lurking in the future.

No matter what else students were required to do, the dreaded  $\mathsf{Studying}$  lurked in the background. Students searched for privacy, or just peace and quiet, all over the campus. From the Reynolda Green Room and Benson Patio to the library, no room was left vacant for long. Aside from the heavy work load and required reading, students worked to fulfill major requirements and go beyond the minimum requirements.

For many people, Homecoming meant returning to a campus that is constantly changing. Amidst the Greek activities and dances, alumni returned for the football game, tailgate parties, and celebrations. Students participated by hosting events and joining in the festivities. The Homecoming court, decided over a week of selections, yielded Abdul Azeez Guice and Crystal Sherese Thomas as the King and Queen.

26 🐸 Student Life

Students took full advantage of the warm North Carolina weather in both the fall and spring semesters, spending hours playing everything from volleyball to ultimate frisbee in the great OUTdoors. Aside from the normal activities, students also joined together to try more unusual pursuits.

As the school year progressed, students and faculty alike began planning for the coming year. Perhaps the most hectic and challenging part of planning was the process of POOM Selection, which ran for a two-week period. Student Apartments, Polo Hall, and Singles were hotly contested items. Even after completing the process, many students were unable to gain the rooms their choice, becoming members of the Yet-To-Be-Assigned list. Following on the heels of room selection, the release by Wake Forest University of the new Off-Campus Housing Policy lead to campus, and community, wide debate. One protest, held on the Mag Quad, even attracted the local media.

Christmas offered many possibilities: The Moravian Lovefeast, music in Benson University Center, and the long-awaited break from the campus. Lovefeast allowed students to celebrate Christmas the old-fashioned way, accompanied with candles and traditional Moravian food and drink. The Wake Forest Handbell Choir accompanied Dr.

Christman as the ritual was explained. The season is always filled with excitement and enthusiam.

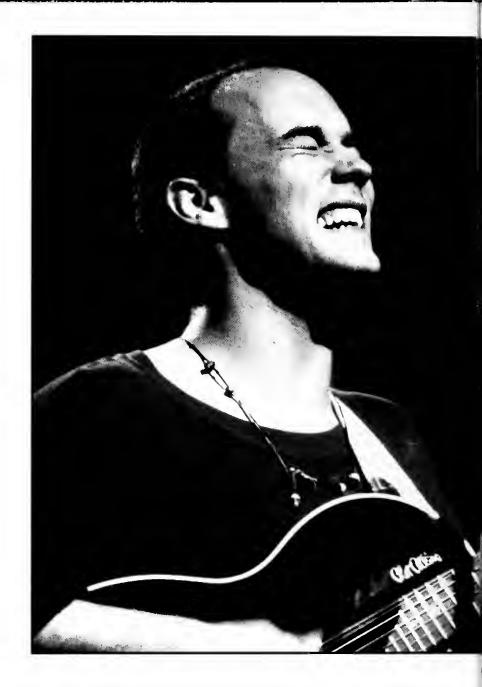

Some of the best times at Wake were spent in Shorty's, the campus pub and coffee house. During the 1998-1999 year, controversy arose from the Baptist community because of the alcohol served in the coffeehouse. The controversy, however, did not stop Shorty's from changing into O'Shorty's Irish Pub for St. Patrick's Day, an event sponsored by Student Union. During the year, Student Union also sponsored a continuing musical series ranging from Karaoke Night to Jazz and Blues.

The daily routine of the average student (i.e. going to classes, studying, and running errands on the quad) was often interrupted by the entertainment presented by Student Union. Every year the student body determines which acts would best be suited for the campus. This year, we had the pleasure to see Dave Mathews, Tom Deluca, and the Halloween Orchestra.

Life around the Quad is all too commonplace. The usual loop consists of the post office (to find you have no mail), the Wachovia (to find you have no money), and then into the Pit (to find out what the chicken of the day is). Other stops along the quad include the Deacon Shop and the Bookstore.

When hall activities become boring and mundane, fun is found during dorm activies. In fact, the most fun is found during interdorm activities. South campus was buzzing this year with one of the largest interdorm activities - the  $South\ Cam-$  pus  $Volleyball\ Tournament$ . The campus got to enjoy the natural rivalry of Johnson vs. Bostwick, Luter vs. Johnson, and of course, Collins vs. the World!

No athletic scholarships here, ladies and gentlemen. What we have here is another popular campus activity, intramural sports. The stage is set for many students to take a break from studying and display their talents (or lack thereof) to the rest of the campus. There is nothing wrong with a little healthy competition. May the best man, or woman, win!

The campus is considered its most gorgeous at night. Darkness of night is a beautiful backdrop to the twin-kling stars, the sparkling moon, and the beaming Chapel. However, darkness due to  $power\ out$ - ages is seen as inconvenient. Many students escape to the hallways of dorms lit by security lights to $finish\ their\ studies.\ Others\ may\ use\ this\ time\ for\ practical\ jokes\ or\ to\ catch\ up\ on\ some\ much\ needed\ sleep.$

Students are always On the move. With only ten minutes between classes, those unfortunate students with the 9:00 a.m. biology class in Winston must use any means necessary to make it to their 10:00 a.m. religion class over in Wingate. When travelling by foot becomes too slow, many students resort to the faster bikes.

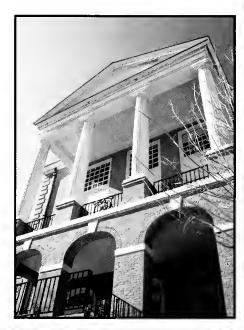

Driving has always been the worse way to get around the campus. Actually, it is not getting around that is the problem, it is the lack of parking that becomes a headache for many students. Many students have become familiar enough with Parking Management to realize that even flashers won't prevent a twenty dollar ticket from being placed under their windshield wipers. There seems to be more faculty parking, physical facility spaces, motorcycle only areas, commuting student lots, visitor parking, and fire lanes on campus than resident student parking. In order to avoid a ticket one could either move their car at 7:00 a.m. every morning, park at the church off-campus, or find a legal space and NEVER LEAVE!

Benson University Center is probably the most travelled building on campus. It is the designated student center and houses many of the student organizations. Students usually visit Benson to eat, study, work out in the gym, or to just hang-out in the game room or enjoy the entertainment in Shorty's.

Many students on campus look to the Volunteer Services

Fair held annually in Benson to find ways to give time to the community. This fair provides many activities from blood drives at the red cross to cleaning streets of local neighborhoods. This becomes an easy and economical way to begin building a nice resume.

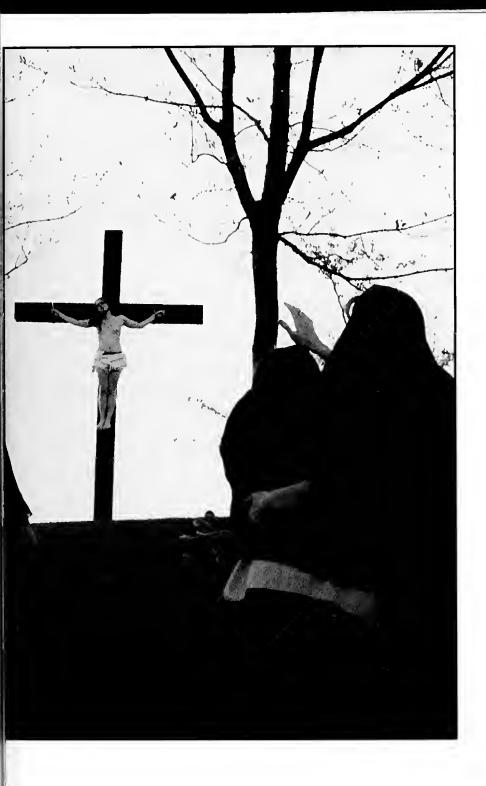

Every Christmas the Theatre department and a collection of singing groups come together and perform the travelling act called Passion Play.

This play, a reinactment of certain Bible selections, begins near Scales, travels all around the campus, and ends on the hilltop in front of North. Each stop finds a different singing group performing popular Christian hymns. These groups include Gospel Choir, Concert Choir, Choral Union, and Chi Rho.

The best times in college are usually spent away from campus. There is nothing better than rest and relaxation. Ahhhh...there is much R&R to be found during  $spring\ break$ . Cruises, beach parties, camping, just plain VACATION! - It's all about fun in the sun! And better yet, it means school is almost out!

There has always been a question as to whether or not dear old Wake Forest was a school that was considered to have a substance abuse problem. The Howler will not speculate. We will let you draw your own conclusions from the pictures seen here. These are scenes from ON-CAMPUS Parties. A little over 51% of the student body is Greek. Fraternity/Sorority parties are highly anticipated on Friday and Saturday nights. Parties like these provide a good release from the everyday rigors of classes and exams.

Uh oh! fire, fire, fire... There is not a day that goes by without the sounds of a fire drill in some building on campus. They are rarely taken seriously; however, many students will remember where they were during the great Polo fire that took place in the spring. Just a tip: if burning an ILLEGAL candle, do not leave it in the window on a windy day.

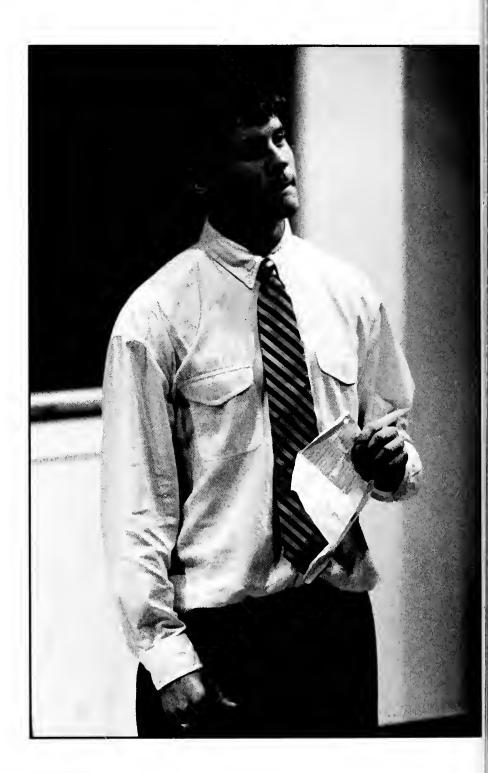

According to the student body, men's basketball is by far the most popular sport on campus. Undoubtedly, the team has the best fah dedication. Through thick and thin, the deacon fans (young and old) are there to show their support for the team. Just an observation: The Deacon and Dick Vitale have the same haircut!

successful in getting students involved with various SChool Sponsored

Students here at Wake realize the importance of the mixture of art and life. Many departments are ACTIVITIES. Popular activities include plays sponsored by the theatre department, mock trial sponsored by the history department, and archaeological digs in Honduras sponsored by the anthropology department.

The stress of exams takes its toll on all students. However,

post exams allows students an entire week to leave the stress of exams behind and celebrate making it through yet another year.

Exams are over. Post-exams are over. As a matter of fact, four years are over. Where did the time go? It seems like yesterday these graduates were freshmen in Collins, Bostwick, and Johnson. Times sure have changed. During the 1995-1996 school year, thinkpads were just a Pilot Program, Palmer and Piccolo were substance-free dorms, while Babcock was all girls and Taylor was all boys. Meanwhile, there was no Polo

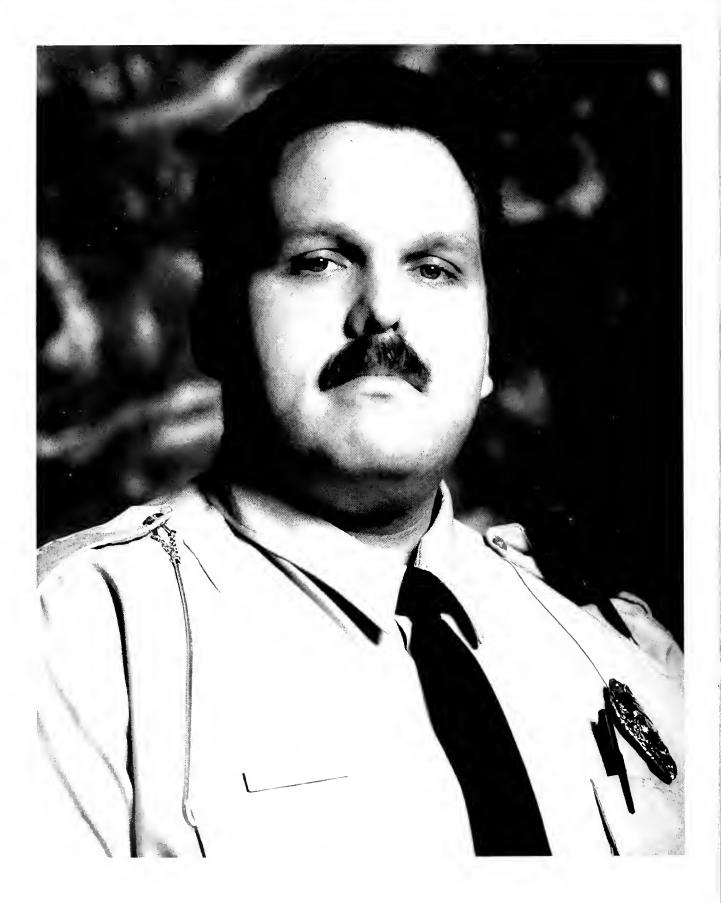

Dorm and the name of South Hall was changed to Collins. But four years have rolled by and some things never changed. There is still no parking, construction workers have become our best friends, and studying was always a 24-hour a day priority. But it was all worth it. It is time to face real-life head on. Congratulation's Class of '99 and enjoy your day:

Graduation 1999!

A new tradition has been started here at the Howler. This year marks the first annual Employee of the Year honors.

This year's recipient is Officer Thomas W. Slater.

Officer Slater has been an upstanding employee for many years. Students feel he is the most student-friendly officer. He makes an effort to meet the students and treat them as fairly as possible. While tough with the law, Officer Slater is still able to be a friend. (Just a side note: it should be said that he is not an officer that gives parking tickets. A good way to tell them apart is that parking management wears brown pants and the officers wear black pants.)

Congratulations Officer Slater, the student body thanks you.

after the students had left for home... the triumph of the Wake Forest

Since 1834, Wake Forest has strived to prepare men and women for personal enrichment, enlightened citizenship, and professional life.

We must indeed all hang together, or, most assur-

Benjamin Franklin

edly, we will all hang separately.

The Baptist State Convention of North Carolina founded Wake Forest Institute on February 3, 1834 and named Samuel Wait as the principal. The school began on the plantation of Calvin Jones which lav in Wake County, North Carolina, near where the village of Wake Forest later developed. The school was rechartered in 1834 as Wake Forest College, and remained exclusively a college of liberal arts for men until 1894. During that year, Wake established the School of Law, and followed with a School of Medicine in 1902, a Division of Graduate Studies in 1961, and a School of Business Administration in 1948 (which was replaced by the Babcock Graduate School of Management in 1969). Finally in 1942, Wake Forest admitted women as undergraduate students.

The trustees of Wake Forest College accepted a proposal by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation to relocate the College to Winston-Salem in 1946. The late Charles H. Babcock and his wife, the late Mary Reynolds Babcock, contributed the campus site, while the necessary building funds were received from many other sources. Between 1952 and 1956, the first fourteen buildings were erected in Georgian style on the campus. In 1956, the College moved all operations to the Winston-Salem site and left the 122year-old campus in the town of Wake Forest to the Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

In 1967, the College's augmented character was recognized by the change in its name to Wake Forest University. Today, enrollment in all schools of the University stands at over 5,000, including approximately 3,600 undergraduate students. In addition, the undergraduate students represent all 50 states and 29 different countries, with a nearly equal distribution of men and women.

CAREER SERVICES -- PREPARING FOR LIFE AFTER COLLEGE

Wake Forest provides many tools necessary to every undergraduate student, but possibly the most important is the Office of Career Services. With two goals — to assist students in their plans for their professional future and to support recruiters in their search for valuable employees — Career Services aids the job search process by bringing together students and employers.

Beth Welsh, a counselor at Career Services, asserts that the Office strives to give career counseling and post-graduate guidance by individually assessing a student's needs and aiming to specifically meet those needs. Beth boasts that their student-placement rate for employment in 1994 was 91%. With over 200 organizations participating in on-campus recruiting, students are sure to get interviews for jobs of their choice.

Whereas graduating seniors find the Office indispensable in finding permanent jobs, Career Services aids underclassmen in finding internships related to their interests. In addition, sophomores and juniors should take advantage of the many workshops offered by Career Services on topics such as resume writing, interview preparation, and networking skills.

During its 23 year history, the Wake Forest Cardiac Rehabilitation program has proudly helped over 2000 patients. The success Wake's rehab program has made it a model for similar programs throughout North Carolina.

Dr. Henry Miller, cardiologist, and Dr. Paul Ribisl, the current chairman of the Health and Sports Science Department, created the cardiac rehabilitation program at Wake Forest in 1975. With the aid of a grant funded by the American Heart Association, the two were able to create a program designed to help rehabilitate patients with a history of cardiovascular surgeries, heart failure, myocardial infarction, argina pectoris, and other coronary ailments. Participants are admitted to the program by referral from their physician. Upon admission, participants undergo a multidisciplinary assessment to identify specific areas to be addressed in the rehabilitation process. The current director of the program, Dr. Peter Brubaker, explains that the patients learn to strengthen their cardiovascular system by exercising, improving their diet, reducing their stress and quitting unhealthy habits such as smoking.

There are currently 14 graduate assistants from the HES Department and 10 to 15 undergraduate students who volunteer their mornings to help these patients. In addition, some undergraduates have the option of receiving credit for the work they perform in the program.

Campus Welcomes New SORORITY... DM Phi Mu

tudents returned to campus in the fall to be welcomed by chalk-filled sidewalks advertising the coming of a new sorority. Information sessions were held by members of the executive committee and sisters from other campuses around the region. On October 25, 1998, following their official installation into sisterhood, twenty-seven girls signed their names to the charter of the Lambda Eta Chapter of Phi Mu Fraternity. Phi Mu was an active, well established, sorority in the fall and completed a successful rush in January, more than doubling chapter size. The group exceeded all expectations. They were up to par with other organizations on campus and took part in fundraisers, formals, Greek Week, date functions, sisterhood events, intramurals and many other activities. This group of dedicatied girls has already shown their committment to excellence through their many hours of hard work and expression of sisterhood. They are sure to be a strong force on the Wake Forest campus for many years to come!

Classes

Largest freshman class ever arrives

By Asny Lineas as

Members of the freshmen class of 967 students are set to begin a new chapter in their lives with the largest number of classifiates in the university's history. The number in this year's class tops last year's high by 25 students but only exceeds the admissions goal of 950 by 47.

The new students, 511 men and 456 women, represent 12 states and eight foreign communes. Hurty one percent barkfrom North Carolina, while a significant amount are also from Georgia, Virginia, Florida and New Jersey

The southern location of the school was a main attraction for some freshmen, such as Kate Halbach from Minneapolis, Minn, who said she wanted to escape the snow belt.

Sixty-one were high school valedictorians and nearly three-fourths were tanked in the top 10 percent of their high school classes. Iwo hundred thirty two students were captains of athletic teams, 222 were presidents of clubs and 55 were student government presidents.

dents Effty-two vearbook editors and 20 newspaper editors are also in this class.

His is one of the strongest classes, it not the strongest, we have ever had. We are drawing a stronger applicant pool." said

"This is one of the stronger classes, if not the stongest, we have ever had. We are drawing a stronger applicant pool."

> Martha Alburun Azeciah duyeter Tadinis tens

Martha Allman, an associate director of admissions. Allman also said the university is sharing applicants with a stronger set of universities than in the past, so more students who have been accepted here are choosing to go elsewhere.

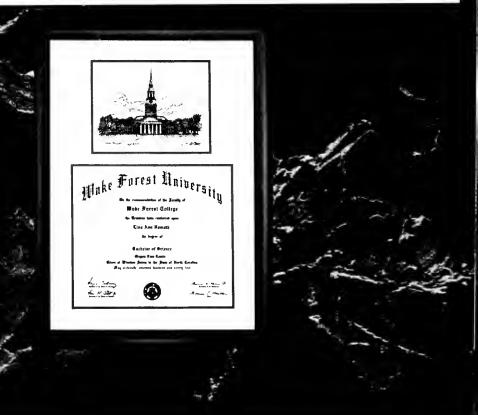

Black students make up time percent of the class, while immorities make up 13 percent. These numbers are an increase over last year, when blacks made up only six percent of the freshman class and mnorities were ten percent. Many students still acknowledge a lack of diversity at the university, but for many treshmen, this issue was not important in the decision to come.

"I read in college books about (the lack of diversity), but it doesn't really matter to me. If everyone here is the same, then I'm like everyone else and I fit in just fine," said Halbach

The class was chosen from 6,637 applicants, which is a record number. An estimated total of 3,675 indergraduates will attend the university this fall, and the relatively small size of the university was an attraction to many students. Gooff Caligan from Herndon, Va. sand the small size was one of the main factors in his decision to come to the university.

Being that I am from Winston-Salem, I have been familiar with Wake Forest all my life, and when it came time to decide on a college, I immediately felt that Wake was the place for me. I am a double major in Art History and English. I love both subjects with equal passion so it was no surprise that I focused my career at Wake in these two areas.

In the Spring of '98 I traveled abroad to London. This experience helped me to appreciate art even more. I also love photography and plan to keep it as a hobby. I like capturing important and significant moments in my life. To me, photography is capturing joy and beauty on film which you can keep forever. Art also captures beauty forever. Both photography and art require creativity, but I have found that I really enjoy the element of design in both. So, this is how I use my talent - to design photographs.

Another aspect of my college career that I feel has added to my love of Wake has been my sorority Delta Delta Delta. I enjoy the organization and I have received good things from my association. I love the friendships I have made, but TriDelta does not define me as a person. I like that I am able to have it on the side and do other activities as well. One of the other activities I participate in is volunteering as a tutor. For three years I have volunteered at a local elementary school and really love helping children. I am sure that is why I want to become a teacher. By helping children, I can give them the attention that they need, because many kids do not get that attention at home. I also want to influence them as others have influenced me.

Upon leaving Wake, I plan to become a teacher teaching English. However, I hope to always study art and persue photography. Hopefully I will someday have my own darkroom to develop my memories. To upcoming underclassmen, I want you to focus on attention. I pay attention to my studies, environment, and friends. I give attention to details, design, and production. And finally, much attention is necessary to work with children and to educate them. There are so many things that we take in and do not realize. We learn so much at Wake Forest that has nothing to do with academics. We take in our environment and ingest all that is around us. You really start to love something when you spend time learning about it. Enjoy these four years because they go quickly, and take advantage of friendships - for life is but a canvas, and we, three out daily activities, paint the story of history.

Wake Forest intrigued me with its Christian history and spiritual tradition. Being that Wake has a small community, I felt as if I could really get to know people on a more personal level. My faith is a very integral part of my existence and the fact that the student community is so close, allowed me to share my love of God as well as his Word.

Drama, like my faith, is an integral part of my life. I knew well before I came to Wake that I wanted to get involved with the theatrical aspects of college life. Many of the dramatic presentations I perform, give me an outlet for my spiritual creativity. Freshman year, I get my start in the theatre doing Big Kiver. I loved doing the production because I felt like I belonged and the group atmosphere provided with a source of intellectual support as well as spiritual growth. Another group, Lilting Banshees, provided me with the most enjoyment of my college career. The group provided me with a place where I could relax and be myself as each of the last two wears is

Although the theatre has had a strong influence on my college career, over the last two years, i have really nurtured and developed my faith with my Lord and Savier Jesus Christ. I know it was by His grace that I am here at Wake, and if I can give back with my talents to better His world, than why not? While Leveloping my relationship with God, I realized that I had no real rutlet that combined both of my loves as strongly as I would have liked. Upon realizing that I was not alone in my thinking, I decided to start a group where its members could use drama to express their love and faith in God. I named the group Living Parables and I thank God for giving me the insight to create such a group that teaches, provides joy, and most of all, gives praise to Him.

As I look ahead to the years following Wake Forest, I envision myself married to Rebecca Lee and II the Ministry. I would like to possibly Paster overseas too, still keeping the creative arts close to my heart. To you upcoming seniors, following the spirit of Pro Humanitatie, do not stretch yourself too thin. Find a group or activity that you feel you can belong to find out what you believe spiritually. Seek out the "truth" for yourself and make it intentional. —Blessed is the man that walketh not in the council of the unGodly nor standeth in the way of sinners nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord. Psalm 1

Class of 1999

Alma Mater

Dear old Wake Forest! Thine is a noble name; Thine is a glorious fame, Constant and true. We give thee of our praise, Adore thine ancient days, Sing thee our humble lays, Mother, so dear.

Dear old Wake Forest, Mystic thy name to cheer;
Be thou our gaurdian near fore'er and aye.
We bow before the shrine, Thy brow with bays entwint
All honor now be thine, Mother, today.

Graduation 1999

Les the day you have planed over and over.
What leads before it, plans and youls to pursue after it and possibly some creative ways to celchrate during it!

If you were a professor, there was the gratification of having pushed a few young minds through school, and hopefully-having helped make them a little wiser. For Mom and Dad, there was a fierce pride in seeing your child achieve along with the deflating realization that he or she was finally becoming independent. For the senior, it was a day of exultant feelings at having reached the end of something, and those of concern as you tried to sort out what in the heek you were going to do with yourself — work, graduate school, or both.

Exams had ended almost a week earlier. Many spent the six-day gap taking in the sun at Myrtle or Ft. Lauderdale; some returned home to desperately continue the search for a job, or just mellow out for a while. But, before there was time to blink, the graduates and their families filled up all the Winston-Salem hotels, settling in for the graduation activites.

Sunday morning's baccalaureate. Brunch in the Magnolia Ryom. Departamental receptions.
The entire weekend proved to be a walk through the memories of the past four years, and even the most unsentimental student found himself feeling a bit nostalgic. Finally, Monday arrived.

Early in the morning, the quad began to awake as chairs were put in place, and students and visitors milled about. Soon, the sophomore and junior marshalls started to usher guists about. Parents took their places, and Commencement began.

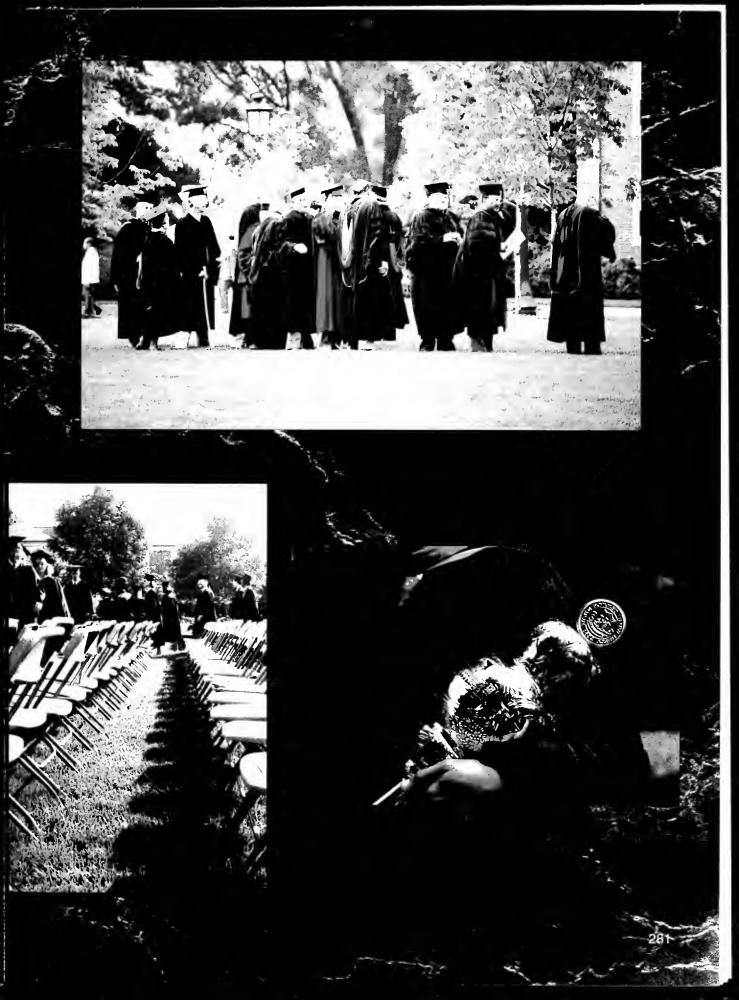

The faculty and students, clad in their gowns, marched solemnly in and were seated. First Cardinal Arinze spoke, then President Hearn. From then on, things moved quickly.

The march to the platform was accompanied by quiet whispers and murmers. Finally, it was time. That walk across the stage, the handshake, the locument, and suddenly an overwhelm ing sense of serenity and accomplishment. Upon returning to their seats, the graduates - no longer students- gave their tassels the turn for independence and were quickly embellished with a mileu of hugs, cheers, and perhans a sit of champagne. It's a momente until Egginethel, no see than sucred, a beginning that simultaneous ending, a magnetal day a celebrate!

Editor's Note

August 23rd, 1995 was perhaps the most intimidating day of my life - the first day at Wake Forest University. The person that had been there for me all of my life was now over 300 miles away. So there I was, alone, frightened, and sitting in the lounge on the third floor of Collins Hall. Little did I know, that this lounge would be a sanctuary from the hectic gruelings of freshman year. It was here that I met the people that would get me through four years of college.

Wake Forest was a huge challenge for me. I was not the best student in the Class of '99. But my friends, those you see on this page, did not care. They always encouraged me, as we all encouraged each other, while finding something special and unique in everyone. We are all individual, yet a collection of honor students, organization leaders, and athletes. Race, religion, money, etc. never seemed to matter because it was most important that we had fun together. Spring break cruises, skiing, white-water rafting, postexams at the beach, New York City, television, training room, Disney World, Super K, Carowinds, movies, dinner, etc...You name it, we did it - memories only friends can share.
